JAPAN YIELDS DISPUTED POINTS; ENVOYS NOW ORDERING TREATY

Preliminary Arrangements for Armistice Are Concluded. PEACE LEAGUE TAKES ACTION

Long and Bloody War in the Far East at an End---News Received Everywhere With Wild Enthusiasm---Sixteen Turn Unexpected.

COMMUNICATION EXTOLLING PRESIDENT SENT TO OYSTER BAY LAST NIGHT.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 29.—The long and bloody war between Japan and Russia is ended. The terms of peace were agreed upon by M. Witte and Baron Komura at the session of the conference this morning, and this afternoon preliminary arrangements for an armistice were concluded and the actual work of framing the "treaty of Portsmouth" was, by mutual agreement, turned over to Mr. De Martens, Russia's greatest international lawyer, and Mr. Dennison, who for 25 years has acted as the legal adviser of the Japanese foreign office. The treaty is expected to be completed by the end of the week.

This happy conclusion of the conference which, a week ago, would have been shipwrecked had it not been for the heroic intercession of President Roosevelt, was sudden and dramatic. For the sake of peace Japan with the magnanimity of a victor, at the last moment, yielded everything still in issue. Russia refused to budge from the ultimatum Emperor Nicholas had given to President Roosevelt through Ambassador Meyer. No indemnity under any guise, but an agreement to divide Sakhalin and reimburse Japan for the maintenance of the Russian prisoners were his last words.

They have repeatedly been used in M. Witte's instructions, and they were delivered to Baron Komura this morning in the form of a written reply to the Japanese compromise proposal of last Wednesday. M. Witte went to the conference declaring he was powerless to change the dot of an "i" or the cross of a "t" in his instructions. Emperor Nicholas' word had been given, not only to him but to President Roosevelt, the head of a foreign state.

Witte Surprised.

When Baron Komura, therefore, first offered the new basis of compromise outlined in the Associated Press dispatches last night, "the complete renunciation of indemnity, coupled with a proposition for the redemption of Sakhalin at a price to be fixed by a mixed tribunal convention consisting of representatives of the neutral powers, in fact, if not in words, the solution offered by the president," M. Witte absolutely returned a flat negative. It was, as M. Witte termed in his interview with the Associated Press, the psychological moment." M. Witte did not flinch. He expected a rupture and as he expressed it afterward, he was stunned by what happened.

Japan Gave Way.

Baron Komura gave way on all the disputed points. With the prescience that has enabled the Japanese to gauge the mental processes of their adversaries on the field of battle, they have realized in advance that peace could be obtained in no other way. They had warned their government. President Roosevelt had also, it is believed, advised Japan that it were better to meet the Russian position than to take the responsibility of continuing the war for the purpose of collecting tribute. The leaders in the session of the cabinet and elder statesmen yesterday had sanctioned the final concession. When Baron Komura yielded, the rest was mere child's play.

Articles Withdrawn.

Articles 10 and 11, interned warships and the limitation of Russia's sea power in the Far East, were withdrawn. Japan agreed that only that portion of the Chinese Eastern railroad south of Changfu, the position occupied by Oyama, should be ceded to Japan. Both sides, when the deadlock was broken, wanted a "just and lasting" peace and in that respect it was decided to practically neutralize Sakhalin, each

VICTORY FOR JAPAN

JAPAN'S IS MORAL AND RUSSIA'S IS DIPLOMATIC—ANIMATION THROUGHOUT THE EMPIRE.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—Japan has won a great moral victory, Russia a great diplomatic one and President Roosevelt has become the first figure in international statesmanship. That is what Berlin thinks of the result of the Portsmouth conference. The foreign office, where the Associated Press brought the first announcement and the summary of conditions agreed upon 30 minutes before they were known elsewhere in Germany, says unreservedly that, without the president's personal exhortations, supported by his unique position and the power of the United States, peace would not have been attained and that Germany and the whole world will benefit by the statesmanship shown by the Washington government. The foreign office acknowledges the generosity and moderation of Japan and the steadfast spirit of the Russian government. Astonishment at the result was felt by the foreign office as it was everywhere else where the Associated Press made inquiries that Russia would not have to pay any indemnity was at first scarcely believable. The Berlin stock exchange had been prepared for news of a rupture in the negotiations and for consequent disorder in the market. There was animation at the Russian embassy until late tonight. The staff of the embassy received callers and their congratulations on what, from a

AMERICA'S FOREIGN PEACE WILL INCREASE MATERIALLY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—News of the agreement of the peace plenipotentiaries at Portsmouth was received here with surprise, for while official minds had been in a measure prepared for a successful outcome of the conference by the statements contained in the Associated Press dispatches from Portsmouth last night, no such speedy action was anticipated. Following closely upon the press bulletins announcing the agreement came a message to Acting Secretary of State Loomis from Third Assistant Secretary of State Peirce at Portsmouth, which may be regarded as official, in these words:

"Russia and Japanese plenipotentiaries agreed upon terms of peace."

The facts appeared clearly upon the announcement of the terms. First that the state department officials had entertained any doubt that the conference would reach an agreement, and second that the militant branches of the government, the army and navy, people were as fully confident that the war would continue indefinitely and to the point of exhaustion of one of the combatants. Now that agreement has been reached, however, these branches of the government experience a feeling of relief. The state department realizes a great victory in having secured beyond any question the open door in Manchuria, which was so dear to the heart of the late Secretary John Hay.

The loyal integrity of China seems also assured, and with the restoration of the vast Manchurian provinces to the control of the present emperor of China and the dowager empress it is felt here that there is an end for all time of insidious foreign aggression upon Chinese soil.

With Korea under a Japanese protectorate developing its great natural resources and all to be opened to American exploitation on even terms with other nations, a large increase in the foreign market open to our products is expected. For its part the navy will be relieved of the tedious and expensive patrol which it has been maintaining in the Philippines ever since the beginning of hostilities to guard against the violation of neutrality by the belligerents, Acting Secretary of State Loomis said tonight:

"Great service has been rendered all mankind by the president. The president has personally done more to bring about this much-desired peaceful settlement of the war than the world knows or perhaps will ever know. His achievement is splendid as it is unique."

Japanese diplomats maintained their usual imperturbability regarding the event as a thing that had been expected. All, however, rejoiced that the disastrous war had been brought to a close with undoubted benefit, not only to Russia and Japan but to the whole world.

Considerable surprise was shown among French diplomats that the Japanese had surrendered so completely relative to the question of indemnity, on which they hitherto had held so firm. Their action in thus making an enormous sacrifice evoked much commendation. Count Cassini, former Russian ambassador at Washington, who arrived from St. Petersburg last night, expressed his pleasure on receipt of the information but declined an interview.

DEPOSITORS MAKE RUN ON TOPEKA BANK.

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 29.—As the result of an absurd rumor circulated by unknown parties to the effect that the condition of the Bank of Topeka was shaky, there was a run on that bank today. At opening time this morning depositors began drawing out their money and continued the run until time for the bank to close this afternoon. Those who withdrew their money were all small depositors, and there is no indication that the run will have a serious effect upon the bank.

ROOSEVELT LOOMS UP AS MESSIAH OF GENERALIZATION

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 29.—In his library at Sagamore Hill President Roosevelt, shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon, received the announcement that the Russian and Japanese plenipotentiaries at Portsmouth had reached an agreement and would proceed at once to conclude the terms of a treaty of peace. The announcement had been expected today. The president at no time during the negotiations had abandoned hope of a successful issue of the conference, but he had realized more clearly than any other man in the world the enormous difficulties which confronted the envoys in their deliberations. While he has not for a moment relaxed his earnest efforts to induce the conferees to continue their discussions with a view to securing a basis of agreement, he had felt for 48 hours that the task he had set for himself in the interest of humanity and civilization was well-nigh hopeless.

The president's first appeals to Petersburg and Tokio had been made. No response had been received from the orient, but from Petersburg came words, Russia's ultimatum, "not a kopeck of indemnity, not a verst of territory."

The situation looked black indeed. The president, however, did not despair. With the final terms of the Japanese government as soon as it should be received from Japan's emperor, he had determined to seek the aid of Emperor William of Germany in support of his proposition that the warring powers submit their points of difference to arbitration of an impartial tribunal. Arbitration in one form or another had been the president's solution of the difficulty ever since the differences seemingly irreconcilable by diplomatic means arose. To this solution Japan had acceded. With the powerful influence of the German emperor at Pekin behind it was hoped that the ground of objection might be cut from beneath the feet of Emperor Nicholas.

Official confirmation of the historic tidings reached the president at 2:20 o'clock in a cipher dispatch from Portsmouth. By authority and at the request of Baron Komura, the chief envoy of Japan, the dispatch stated:

"The plenipotentiaries of Japan have withdrawn their claim for war expenditures and an agreement has been reached as to the partition of the island of Sakhalin. All main points have

COMMUNICATION EXTOLLING PRESIDENT SENT TO OYSTER BAY LAST NIGHT.

SAYS CIVILIZED WORLD GREETS THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE AS A BENEFACTOR OF HUMANITY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The following communication from the Portuguese Peace league has been received at the state department and transmitted to Oyster Bay:

"To His Excellency, The President of the United States of America:

"Mr. President: The civilized world greets you as a benefactor of humanity. Your intervention in the Russo-Japanese war merits the blessings of all those who hope to terminate the era of violence which unhappily still characterizes our time. Your initiative in favoring the next peace conference represents a new tribute furnished by your great mind to the principles of justice and peace which constitutes the foundation of international arbitration.

"It is the eloquent affirmation of a judicial state which will render wars impossible in the future.

"For this double reason, the Portuguese Peace league ventures to transmit to your excellency the hearty felicitations of this event which history will afford as one of the most beautiful of our times."

DIED FROM STEPPING ON A RUSTY NAIL.

LOUISVILLE, Colo., Aug. 29.—Ernest Eunger, the eight-year-old son of John Eunger, contractor and builder, died this morning of blood poisoning, the result of stepping on a rusty nail. The accident happened last Thursday, but the lad made no complaint until Saturday, when the foot commenced to swell. Then it was too late for physicians to be of any help.

CHOLERA SITUATION IS LESS FAVORABLE TODAY.

MANILA, Aug. 29.—The cholera epidemic has taken a rather unfavorable turn. Since 6 o'clock this morning until 6 in the evening there have been eleven new cases reported among the natives. The total number of cases treated since the outbreak has been forty, with deaths numbering twenty-five.

DOCTORS, NURSES AND MEDICINES SENT TO THE SUFFERING—NEW ORLEANS SITUATION UNCHANGED.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 29.—Report to 6 p. m.: New cases, 45; total to date, 1,832; deaths 6; total to date, 267; new treatment, 173.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 29.—The most important development in the yellow fever situation today was the report of Dr. Milo Brady, who had been sent by the state board of health on a tour of inspection of the bayous and lakes in Jefferson parish, where there are many settlements of fishermen in constant communication with New Orleans. Dr. Brady made the trip with Dr. Dominguez of Donaldsonville. Without completing their investigation they found cases of yellow fever, mostly along Bayou Barataria, learned that deaths had occurred, and found much suffering. After Dr. Brady had made his report the state board decided to organize immediately a relief party. A large supply of medicines and provisions will also be sent.

The local situation continues to be the most hopeful. On August 18 there were estimated to be 339 cases under treatment, but since then there has been a steady decrease, until today there were reported only 187 sick, 74.5 per cent of the total of 1,781 cases having been discharged as cured or convalescent. Showers continued here throughout the day, succeeding a heavy rain yesterday and there was a great moderation in temperature.

SECRETARY SHAW ANSWERS GOVERNOR CUMMINS'S LETTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Another chapter in the controversy between Secretary Shaw and Governor Cummins of Iowa, growing out of statements in a speech of the former, was added tonight when Secretary Shaw made public the following:

"Mr. Dear Governor Cummins:

"I have seen a copy of your letter of August 28, published, in which you justify quoting me as saying that the senate had refused to consider the French treaty because 'it gives everything to France and nothing to the United States,' by an excerpt from an editorial comment on my remarks, in which it is said that I demonstrated that we were offering France a tremendous bargain and getting practically nothing in return. You take several positions in your letter in which I cannot concur. I do not agree that public men are bound by editorial comment, however friendly. Neither do I agree that an expression of opinion, however erroneous, is a violation of the proprieties of debate. I expressed, however, no opinion whatever concerning the French treaty in my Des Moines talk as you would have observed had you read the report instead of the editorial comment thereon.

"I did state three uncontrovertible facts and dismissed the subject. I stated that by the terms of the French treaty we agreed to admit 70 kinds of French merchandise at a less rate of duty than we collect upon the same kinds of goods coming from any other country, and expressly consented that 70 kinds of American products should pay a higher rate when sent to France than was charged on the same kinds of goods from several other countries. I stated that I favored the ratification of the French treaty. I also stated that some senators thought it unwise to discriminate against the country of our principal market in favor of another country. As you do not take issue with any of these propositions, what I regard as a hasty statement in your letter is that I violated the proprieties of debate when at the most you attribute to me an opinion with which you take issue. I forgive without your asking it. I doubt not the balance of your speech was more carefully considered. Certainly the subject was more worthy of consideration than any statement I might have made or any editorial comment."

been definitely settled. The plenipotentiaries will now proceed with discussion of details."

Shortly after the receipt of this message the full Associated Press report of the scenes at Portsmouth incident to the announcement of the news, including M. Witte's statement of the adjustment of the differences by the conferees, was received at the executive offices and carried by special messenger to President Roosevelt at his home. He read the account with deep interest.

Would Not Talk.

While the president did not conceal his profound gratification that the conference has reached an agreement, he said he was obliged in the circumstances to refrain from any formal expression regarding the work accomplished until he should have been informed fully as to the details. It can be said, however, that he feels that the successful issue of the conference is a great triumph for humanity. Such public expression as he may make regarding the work of the conference will be announced after he has had opportunity to carefully consider it.

Throughout this little village, among the friends and neighbors of President Roosevelt, his interest in the proceedings at Portsmouth has been keenly appreciated. The news of the agreement thrilled through the town with magical rapidity. Business practically was suspended for a time and the people assembled in groups here and there to discuss the unexpected news. At the conclusion of their labors in the Washington conference the plenipotentiaries of both powers will be received by the president. At the reception there will probably be some notable utterances. Throughout the afternoon messages of congratulation by the score poured in upon the president from all parts of the world. None of these dispatches was made public.

Roosevelt Notified.

Late tonight President Roosevelt received the following telegram from the Russian envoys:

"The President:

"We have the honor to inform you that we have reached an agreement with the plenipotentiaries of Japan. To you history will award the glory of having taken the generous initiative in bringing about this conference whose labors will now probably result in establishing a peace honorable to both sides."

To this telegram the president sent the following reply:

"I cannot too strongly express my congratulations to you and the entire civilized world upon the agreement reached between you and the plenipotentiaries of Japan, and upon the fact that thereby a peace has been secured just and honorable to both sides."

The president expressed his personal pleasure at the tone of the messages from the envoys and at the opportunity which had been afforded him to be of service in bringing them together in a "just and honorable peace."

Bartow Wilkins, 522 South Weber street, was taken to the county jail last evening in the police ambulance while suffering from an attack of delirium tremens.

C. E. Friend, charged with a violation of the hack ordinance, failed to obey the order of the police court to appear at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

The police were requested to search for J. L. Smith, 75 years of age, who wandered from his home at 1305 Colorado avenue about 7 o'clock last night. The old man was found about 10 o'clock at the Huerfano street viaduct.

Envoys Welcomed at Hotel With Burst of Unbounded Enthusiasm.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 29.—Not until M. Witte arrived at the hotel with Baron Rosen shortly after 10 o'clock and received one of the most remarkable ovations ever accorded a foreigner in this country did the guests in the hotel know the terms of peace which the Associated Press had bulletined a few minutes after the adjournment of the morning session. For half an hour the crowd awaited the arrival of M. Witte. Word had come that he and Baron Rosen were returning to their hotel for luncheon, but that the Japanese mission would remain at the navy yard.

Big Crowd Gathered.

By the time the big automobile bringing the Russian peacemakers dashed up to the front of the Russian headquarters the veranda was crowded with 300 persons. The crowd met the envoys before they reached the veranda and began the mighty cheer that did not die until M. Witte had entered his apartments on the second floor and sunk into a chair, moved almost to tears and completely overcome by the inspiration of the moment, the conflicting emotions produced by the momentous events at the navy yard and the wildly enthusiastic demonstration which greeted him on his arrival.

Great Enthusiasm.

"Bravo! bravo!" they cried. In their mad enthusiasm the people rushed to the end of the veranda and met the fifty or more who had been watching at the corner to give the signal of the envoys' arrival. Both M. Witte and Baron Rosen lifted their hats. The occasion was, with all the enthusiasm, too solemn for them to do more than respectfully bow their heads. Then M. Witte started shaking the outstretched hands. Before he had passed up the stairway leading to his apartments the crowd began crying: "What about indemnity; how much did Russia pay?"

Turning to the crowd, M. Witte snapped back to the questioners with good feeling: "Pas un sou" (not a cent.)

The ring of pride in his voice told the crowd that M. Witte had won his victory. The words brought another cheer.

Shook Hands With All.

Forcing his way through the crowd, M. Witte met the members of the Russian mission who rushed forward to shake his hands. Briefly he gave them the joyful tidings. Then as he started up the stairs he said to another inquirer who murmured the word indemnity:

"We pay not a kopeck of indemnity, sir, not a kopeck."

The crowd yelled uproariously, all except the Japanese. In a group the Japanese correspondents returned to the May hotel anxiously awaiting news from the Japanese mission.

Ovation Remarkable.

The whole truth they learned when Mr. Sato made the Japanese official announcement later in the evening. The Japanese demonstration did not begin until after 5 o'clock, as the Japanese envoys remained at the yard during the afternoon. When it came it was even more remarkable than that of the Russians, for all present appreciated the sacrifice the heroic little nation had made for peace. The crowd which awaited them as they dashed up in an automobile was larger than that which greeted M. Witte. The cheering came in volleys. Again and again the crowd yelled and waved their hats.

Baron Komura and Mr. Takahira looked straight ahead and seemed almost embarrassed by the ovations. They felt the full responsibility which had been upon their shoulders.

Japanese Disappointed.

When Mr. Sato entered the lobby with the official announcement, even the summer girls crowded in and pushed and fought to get in the inner circle. Mr. Sato fairly fought his way to the rear of the veranda and ascending to the band stand read the Japanese statement. Near him stood the still incredulous Japanese correspondents. They waited for the last word to be read. It confirmed M. Witte's announcement that Japan received nothing for the cost of the war and gave up one-half of Sakhalin.

"We did not believe this morning," said one of the correspondents, as he walked away shaking his head.

"Russia brought on this war; she should have paid for it."

He was interrupted by another correspondent:

"But the emperor has ordered it."

"Yes," he said, "the emperor has spoken and Japan will obey. The emperor is all wise and Japan is satisfied."

diplomatic point of view, seemed a remarkable Russian success, yet Japan was regarded as having won all she sought for, even in imagination, before the war began. The universal opinion is that Japan has shown a forbearance that no European power would have shown.

Prec Gilbert Prec Professionals Lay Breaking 127 Out of 130 Targets and Three Amateurs Tied at 24 for First Honors. Large Number of Entries Prevented Completion of First Day's Program.

When the entries for the opening day's shoot in the interstate shoot at the Broadmoor grounds were complete yesterday there were 117 participants from all parts of the country on the bulletin board. One hundred and ten of these shot through the entire list of yesterday's events. Next to the Grand American handicap this is the largest attendance at any shoot of the year.

So great were the number of squads that it was impossible to complete more than the first eight events—only two-thirds of the program. As soon as it became evident that the tournament could not be completed on schedule time at that rate, the committee, with characteristic energy, made arrangements for the installation of another trap and by 9 o'clock this morning three traps will be in operation.

The grounds presented a lively scene. During the day hundreds of interested visitors thronged the grounds to watch the crack marksmen work at the traps. The shooters spent the entire day on the grounds, meals being served there. Admission is free.

The Trinidad squadron was present to boost for the Grand Western handicap which follows this shoot next week, and they made quite a hit with their red, white and blue suits.

The rain and wind at periods during the last two events served to cut down the scores of many of the shooters. The eight events included 130 targets. Fred Gilbert led the professionals with a record of 127. Harold Money came second with 126. C. T. Callison third with 125, William Crosby fourth at 124 and Captain A. H. Hardy fifth at 122.

Three amateurs tied for the honors of the day at 124—Ed O'Brien, H. G. Taylor and E. F. Conforr. R. R. Barber, winner of the 1905 Grand American handicap; George Maxwell, the one-armed shooter from Holstein, Neb., and William Veath tied for second at 122. John W. Garrett, C. A. Hurtle and E. V. Fisher broke 122; Joe Rohrer and C. M. Powers, 121, and A. J. Lawton, Alex Mermod, A. Olson, R. E. Barnes, T. J. Hartman and J. A. Sheldon 120.

The four events remaining on yesterday's program will be shot off the first thing today. This will be followed by today's program of 12 events—four at 15 targets, two at 20, four at 15 and two at 20. When the shooting closed with the eighth event yesterday, the shooters, who had been at the traps throughout every event, had broken the following out of a possible 130 targets:

ST. PETERSBURG GETS GOOD NEWS

GREAT SURPRISE AND AMAZEMENT EXPRESSED THAT JAPAN YIELDED SO MUCH.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 30.—The Associated Press dispatches from Portsmouth, brought the first news of the results of the peace of the peace conference. It came as an electric surprise, as officials and diplomatic circles had been practically without hopes of a successful issue of the negotiation. The news became known to only a comparatively small number of persons up to midnight outside of diplomatic circles, among a few officials and in the newspaper offices and consequently there was no expression of public feeling. At this hour there is absolutely nothing to indicate to even a close observer that the 18 months of war is at an end. Wherever the news was known surprise and even amazement was expressed that Japan had so completely met the Russian demands, but the reception of the news so far as it had gone up to the time of the dispatch was filed was calm and even apathetic. The foreign office was dark all night, thus giving no evidence that the news had been officially received here.

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 29.—The following statement was issued by Mr. Sato in behalf of the Japanese envoys:

"The question of the final disposition of the island of Sakhalin and the reimbursement to Japan of her war expenses have been issues on which absolute divergence of views existed. The difference of opinion upon these points has frequently threatened the existence of the conference. But his majesty the emperor of Japan, responding to the dictates of humanity and civilization, has authorized his plenipotentiaries to waive the question of reimbursement of war expenses and has consented to a division of Sakhalin upon terms which are mutually acceptable, thus making it possible to bring the important work of the conference to a successful issue."

Movement in China Against American Goods Assumes Serious Proportions.

PEKING, Aug. 29.—The American boycott almost overshadows the peace negotiations as a topic of interest in China. Accounts reaching Peking from trading centers indicate that the movement attained its greatest strength early in August and since then has been decreasing. Nowhere except in Shanghai has American business received a serious blow. The boycott would have been equally successful at Tien Tsin, which is a distributing market for American goods second only to Shanghai, except for the determined repression of Yuan Shikai, who is almost the only Chinese viceroy really ruling his own province.

Government in Sympathy.

The Peking government, in response to Minister Rockhill's representations, issued instructions to provincial officials which read well, but which the officials construe with the belief that the government sympathizes with the sentiment for the exclusion of American goods, although obliged formally to oppose the method of its expression. Several minor officials are implicated in the movement at Shanghai, and its leader holds the rank of taotai. The government might punish them by depriving them of honors, according to the Chinese custom, if it were in earnest.

Merchants Repent.

Many prominent merchants who embarked in the boycott, now repent of the scheme, but it has passed beyond their control into the hands of agitators, the majority of whom are students, many recently returned from Japan, and some from America, who relate at meetings and in newspapers lurid stories of outrages received at the hands of American immigration officials. The agitators are active principals in the central and southern cities. They have abandoned the original demand that Chinese students and merchants be admitted to America as freely as those of other nationalities, and now are demanding the unrestricted entry of all Chinese. They argue that if this movement succeeds the same coercion may be employed against Canada, Australia, Java and all countries in which Chinese live.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29.—Chang Chien, who has been ordered by the Peking ministry of commerce to take measures to settle the boycott against American goods, met today the Chinese chamber of commerce and principal piece goods merchants in this city and began by fining certain dealers 4,000 taels for alleged breaches of the boycott. He then ordered all to sign an agreement to buy no more American goods from foreign merchants of any nationality.

Regarding goods contracted for before the boycott was started, he stated his intention of opening an office and granting passes and stamping such goods, thus permitting their sale in the interior.

He also announced his intention of opening offices in 36 principal trade centers in China, where goods so stamped will be passed. This will require an initial sum of 200,000 taels, which Shanghai dealers must pay, thus averting impending financial ruin. This means the creation of permanent boycotting machinery, available against any branch of any foreign trade in China and the practical imposition of new taxation against all treaty tariffs.

EXPECTS TO GET A BONANZA FROM SALE OF INVENTIONS

Joseph Hirschenfeld to Go East With String of Devices Ranging From Airship to Vegetable Cutter. Has Genius for Mechanics.

With the models of his eight latest inventions, which range from an airship to a cutter of French fried potatoes, Joseph Hirschenfeld, inventor, erstwhile bicycle repairer and a resident of Colorado Springs for the last five years, leaves in a few days for the east, where he hopes to find a market for his inventions and come into his own, scientifically and financially.

"If my airship proves a success," he said yesterday, with a smile and a shrug of his shoulders, which left no room for doubt as to his being a native of sunny France, "I shall be able to lend Rockefeller some money when he goes broke."

"And if it should not prove to be a success," asked the dubious reporter.

"But it will—I know it will," came the quick reply. "Within a few months I shall ride from the campus of Colorado college to the top of Pike's Peak. And not on a burro, either, but through the air."

Mr. Hirschenfeld, who resides at 601 South Tejon street, has lived the life of all inventors. He has been successful and wealthy. He has spent his money on models for new inventions. He is now "broke," but is full of hope.

Among his 50 inventions are a chainless bicycle, a street-car fare register, a hair clipper and the pocket tape measure. He sold his register patent for $50,000, his hair clipper for $50,000, his chainless patent for $2,000 and his tape measure for $200. The man to whom he sold the latter made $1,500,000 out of it.

But all of this money he spent on his friends and on new models and five years ago he came to Colorado Springs practically penniless and started a bicycle repair shop at 7 South Cascade avenue. He has worked unceasingly during these last five years. Part of his time he has spent mending punctured tires and broken frames that he might buy food for himself and two children. The other half he has spent working over his inventions.

The eight inventions which he will take east for marketing are an airship, a spirit-lamp, a double roulette wheel, a backscratcher, a box puller, a 1-minute churn, a vegetable slicing machine and a cutter of French fried potatoes.

The airship is simply a bicycle with steering screw in front, parachute wings on the side and a lifting fan propelled with gasoline on top. The driver rides along on the bicycle until he comes to an open space, then turns over the motor machinery and ascends into the heavens. When he wishes to come back to earth he loosens the parachute wings, shuts off his power and descends. When he reaches the ground he starts pedaling and rides along on the bicycle. The airship will weigh 90 pounds and the motor will have a lifting power of 350 pounds. It will have a seven-horse-power engine.

The double roulette wheel is a reversible affair, the feature of which is that no one handles the ball which brings fate or fortune.

The churn [illegible] butter in 60 minutes with little effort.

The spirit lamp will, with a few drops of alcohol, boil a gallon of water in a half minute.

The box puller is a device for clerks to extract a box from a high shelf while standing on the floor.

PACIFIC COAST BOYS WIN

EXPLOITS OF SPRINGS BOYS

Jean Vanatta and John Hundley, two Colorado Springs boys, won fame a few days ago on the Pacific coast for their seamanship and daring in boldly facing in a fragile launch the tremendous breakers of the Pacific ocean that thunder on the west shores of Catalina islands. The story of the adventure is told in the following from the Los Angeles Record of August 26:

Jean Vanatta and John Hundley, fearless boy navigators, are the heroes and pets of the residents of Catalina islands.

Without an accident and without a tremor they have succeeded in making the trip around the island, some 68 miles, in a little gasoline launch. According to the wisest old salts in the vicinity, it is the first time the trip has been made successfully in such a small boat.

The young sea-lovers made the trip in 10 hours, taking two days to it, so that they might have the opportunity to land and camp in the wilds on the far side of the island.

To commemorate the event and to prove their ability with the line as well as the paddler, the youthful explorers caught five sharks, which added in no little measure to their glory at the home-coming.

Jean Vanatta is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Vanatta, and he and his mother are expected home today.

John Hundley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hundley. The trip was made in the "Colorado," a gift to young Hundley from his father.

TWO DIVORCE ACTIONS FILED IN COUNTY COURT

Emmet Collop yesterday filed suit in the county court for divorce from Hattie L. Collop, charging unfaithfulness to her marriage vows. After setting forth the fact of the marriage at Sedgwick, Kan., on September 17, 1900, the complaint charges that the defendant deserted the plaintiff on July 10, 1903, and alleges that both before and after that date his wife was guilty of unlawful cohabitation with Robert Campbell.

Olive E. Smith is the plaintiff in an action for divorce from Wm. S. Smith. In addition to the charge of non-support, the plaintiff alleges that her husband was extremely cruel to her, calling her vile names, striking her upon several occasions, and at one time throwing her against the stove. It is alleged that his cruelty completely wrecked her health, making it necessary for her to seek a change of climate and altitude in order to preserve her life.

RHEUMATISM.

When pains or irritation exist on any part of the body, the application of Ballard's Snow Liniment gives prompt relief. E. W. Sullivan, Prop. Sullivan House, El Reno, O. T., writes, June 8, 1902: "I take pleasure in recommending Ballard's Snow Liniment to all who are afflicted with rheumatism. It is the only remedy I have found that gives immediate relief." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Hefley-Arcularius Drug Co.

E. E. GLEW COMPELLED TO THROW UP HANDS AT PISTOL'S POINT AND IS RELIEVED OF CASH.

E. E. Glew, a photographer, was held up in front of his residence at 2603 North Nevada avenue at 10:30 o'clock last night and robbed of $3 in silver, a silver watch and chain.

Mr. Glew had almost reached his gate when two young men, tall and wearing dark clothing and slouch hats, stepped from the shadows and commanded him to hold up his hands, at the same time pointing revolvers at his head. The hands went into the air and while one man held a leveled revolver the other went through his clothing, taking his watch, chain and money. They then advised him to keep going on, and, turning north, started on the run toward the Rock Island cut.

JAPAN YEILDS DISPUTED POINTS

country binding itself not to fortify its half of the island, and Japan assuming an obligation not to fortify La Perouse strait between Sakhalin and Hokkaido, which would be Russia's commercial route to the Pacific.

The plenipotentiaries went further.

PROF. DE MARTENS.

Russia's Greatest International Lawyer, Who is Representing the Czar in Drafting the Peace Treaty.

They decided to add a new clause to the nature of a broad provision for mutual commercial privileges by which each country will secure for the other the benefit of the most favored nation clause and the "open door."

No Secret Clauses.

The new treaty, therefore, will be a wonderfully friendly document, of a character almost to raise the suspicion that the two countries have not negotiated peace, but have concluded the basis of a future alliance. There is, however, no evidence, as rumored, that any secret clauses are to be appended to the present treaty.

Before leaving the conference building felicitations were exchanged with the president at Oyster Bay. Both Baron Komura and M. Witte telegraphed. The former confined himself to apprising Mr. Roosevelt of the conditions upon which peace had been concluded. M. Witte frankly laid his tribute at the president's feet. In his message he said:

"History will ascribe to you the glory," and added the expression of Russia's hearty appreciation of the president's "generous initiative."

Mr. Roosevelt replied with words of thanks and congratulation.

Witte Jubilant.

Then began the jubilation. M. Witte and Baron Rosen returned to the hotel for luncheon. The Japanese had remained at the conference chamber to lunch with Mr. Peirce. The news that peace had been concluded had preceded the Russian plenipotentiaries and such scenes of wild rejoicing have never before been witnessed in the state of New Hampshire as greeted them upon their arrival at the hotel.

M. Witte, dazed at the sudden and happy termination of the conference, was fairly overpowered by the tremendous ovation he received. He could only express his gratitude by shaking the hands of everybody and in response to the volley of questions fired at him as to the terms, murmured: "We pay not a kopeck, and we get half of Sakhalin."

Russians Happy

Later in his room, when he had partially recovered himself, he declared that he could not have dreamed of such a victory, for that he regards it a diplomatic triumph of such magnitude he makes no attempt to conceal his joy. And in it is the general verdict here tonight: The Russians are overjoyed at the result.

"We have had our Liaoyangs and Mukdens on land," they say, "and our Tsushimas on sea, but the Japanese have their Portsmouth."

HOWARD HEATH PROVES SUCCESSFUL ARTIST

In the current number of the Red Book, published in Chicago, are several drawings by Howard Heath, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Heath of this city, illustrating "Love and the Fence-Cutters." The work of Mr. Heath in his four illustrations is clever and artistic and shows a finished technique. The young artist has a large number of friends in this city, who will be pleased to learn of his success.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours, a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the Colorado Springs Daily Gazette. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

AMUSEMENTS

THE NOBLES DRAMATIC CO. AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The Nobles Dramatic Co. will open their engagement at the Opera house this afternoon, presenting the four-act melodrama, entitled "The Gold King." The company has the reputation of being one of the best repertoire companies in the west. They will give two performances every day—matinee at 2:30 p. m., and in the evening at 8:30 p. m. Summer prices will prevail—matinee 10 and 20 cents; evening prices 10, 20, 30 and 50 cents. An exchange in speaking of their performance says: The Nobles Dramatic company without doubt the best popular priced organization which has been seen here in many months, presented the four-act melodrama, "The Gold King," to a large and well pleased audience at the theater last night. Each and every character of the play was ably handled by the members of the company, and the specialty work of the Moores between acts was enthusiastically received and encored. The company carries all their own special scenery and the stage settings last night were elaborate and beautiful.

THE WISE & MILTON QUARTET A BIG FEATURE.

The Empire show, featuring the Wise and Milton Quartet packed the house to capacity again last night. The show is gaining in popularity, as is also the Empire. At tonight's performance, by special request, Miss Milton, assisted by the rest of the company, will sing that popular song entitled "Alexander."

The Dayton Sisters are pleasing all audiences alike, for everybody enjoys good dancing, and theirs is the best, their time being perfect. The Great Wagner is more than making good in an act that is most difficult. Miss Thompson, the charming little soubrette, is very clever, and so graceful that she wins a place in the hearts of everyone. The life motion picture of the "Firebug" is a big attraction, and produces much applause when the villain is caught. The song by Mr. L. C. Truss is taking well, and such shows as these are what makes the Empire to Colorado Springs as the Orpheum is to Denver.

THE PLACE TERMS ENIGMA.

THE peace settlement—or as much of it as the public has been permitted to learn so far—is an enigma.

Accepting the terms as set forth in the dispatches of yesterday and this morning as being the actual basis, the question arises, what compensation is Japan to receive for the tremendous cost of the war? Why has the Mikado deliberately thrown away important advantages which were absolutely within his grasp? Why did he weaken at the critical point and accept half a loaf when he might have had almost a whole one?

Here are the terms as accepted by the Czar. Japan [illegible] her demand for an indemnity in any guise and will receive no cash payment from Russia except the cost of maintaining the Russian prisoners. She also withdraws her demands that Russia surrender the interned warships and consent to limit her naval power in the Far East. The island of Sakhalin is to be divided between the two nations, Russia taking the northern part and Japan the southern. The island is now in complete possession of the Japanese, but Russia is to pay nothing for retaining her share.

In return for these concessions by Japan, Russia agrees: 1. To recognize the preponderating influence of Japan in Korea. 2. To evacuate Manchuria simultaneously with Japan. 3. To transfer to Japan all docks, magazines and military warehouses in Port Arthur and Dalny without compensation, all rights in private property to be respected by Japan. 4. To transfer to Japan her leasehold in the Liaotung Peninsula, Port Arthur and Dalny. 5. To return to China the civil administration of Manchuria in accordance with the treaty given by Russia to China on April 8, 1902, which provided that Manchuria should be restored to China in three successive periods of six months each, the failure to carry out which was one of the chief causes of the war. 6. To transfer to Japan the railroad from Chantfu, the position occupied by Oyama, south to Port Arthur. 7. To grant to Japan mining rights on the Siberian coast.

It will thus be seen that while Japan secures everything for which she went to war, she gets very little else of real value, and nothing at all that will reimburse her the vast sums spent in enforcing recognition of her rights. Preponderating influence in Korea and Russian evacuation of Manchuria were the cardinal principles for which she fought, and these conditions were to be accepted as a matter of course. Similarly it was to be expected that after having twice taken Port Arthur, Japan would insist upon keeping it. The acquisition of the Russian leasehold in the Liaotung Peninsula is of very great value, and the return to China of the civil administration of Manchuria is also a thing much to be desired from the Japanese viewpoint.

The grant of fishing rights on the Siberian littoral is of small consequence as a prize of war. As concerns the Chinese Eastern Railroad, it is noticeable that the Russians surrender only the part of it from Chantfu south, or as much as is actually in possession of the Japanese. The line between Mukden and Harbin remains in the control of the Russians. This railroad is enormously valuable from a strategic standpoint as well as for commercial uses.

It is almost certain that the Japanese will permanently acquire Manchuria, for it is worth vastly more to them than to its real owner, China. But they could not flagrantly seize it without exciting the indignation of the world; moreover the terms specifically state that they must evacuate it simultaneously with the Russians. But within a few months, or a year or two at most, we may expect an announcement that the province has been formally transferred by the Chinese government to the Mikado. Japan will of course have to pay for it, so the clauses which concern Manchuria give her an advantage with a string to it.

The Czar has repeatedly offered to surrender the interned ships and agree to limit his naval power in the Far East if Japan would withdraw her demand for indemnity and Sakhalin. It has been apparent all the time that indemnity was the one thing that Russia positively would not consent to, so it is reasonable to suppose that she would have consented to a proposal based on a withdrawal of the indemnity clause, with an agreement to either the limitation of naval power or surrender of the warships, with Sakhalin to remain in Japanese possession. There are several ways in which it can be figured out, with perfect reasonableness, that Japan could have enforced more advantageous terms than have actually been agreed upon.

It is denied from Portsmouth that the treaty is to contain secret clauses. This makes it doubly difficult to explain the Mikado's sudden and complete capitulation. It is all very well to talk about magnanimity to a fallen foe, but magnanimity plays an infinitesimally small part in such negotiations as these. The stake is too vast for either player to give his opponent any advantages. M. Witte said yesterday that he was "amazed" when Baron Komura accepted the Russian ultimatum, and he added, "It is a complete victory for us." The Russian envoy may well congratulate himself, for he and his imperial master have achieved a masterstroke of diplomacy.

After having been signally beaten in every engagement of the war, Russia has secured peace simply by surrendering a lot of property which she never owned, and Japan, the victor, can get this property only by buying it. For the first time in eighteen months the Autocrat of all the Russias has just reason to congratulate himself.

THE COTTON LEAK CASES.

WITH the recent indictment of Assistant Statistician Holmes, of the Agricultural Department, and the previous indictment of Peckham, the cotton report scandal is in a fair way to be sifted down. Some doubt has been expressed as to whether there is a specific law that will make it possible to punish those who "juggle" the report, even though they be convicted of using public information for private gain. This, of course, is a matter yet to be decided, but if there is no law under which justice can be meted out, the prosecution will at least serve to draw the matter to the attention of Congress so that laws providing for the punishment of such betrayers of public trusts may be enacted. The public is getting tired of such forms of graft as have been revealed in the department of agriculture and it is the duty of Congress to stamp out the evil as far as possible.

There is no question that what Holmes and Peckham are accused of doing constitutes an offense against the public moral sense, at least, and an act contrary to good public policy. Whether it is a statutory crime remains to be seen, but such it should be made in order that Government departmental business may be freed from such practices. The exposure of such graft will doubtless serve to check it for a time, but it will not have a lasting effect. What must be done is to make it impossible, or to provide suitable punishment for those who have not the moral courage to resist such temptations.

A TRIUMPH FOR ROOSEVELT.

TODAY the world takes off its hat to Theodore Roosevelt, and right gladly is the honor accorded. All other statesmen must step into the background, for even the envoys and their imperial masters are small figures in the great game just ended at Portsmouth compared to the President of the United States. Today the press of every foreign land, as well as of our own, will acclaim him as undisputed master of world diplomacy, the man who, judged by the final test of success or failure, has shown himself to be the greatest peacemaker of his time. History will have much to say of the part played by Theodore Roosevelt in the settlement of the Russo-Japanese War.

Almost a year ago—long before events had shaped themselves so that peace negotiations could even be talked of, Mr. Roosevelt quietly intimated to the governments at Tokio and St. Petersburg that whenever either of them could see its way clear to take steps toward ending hostilities it would find a willing instrument in the President of the United States. As the terrible drama continued and the Japanese land and sea forces steadily tightened their grip on the luckless Russians he watched constantly for a chance to call time. The Russians were beaten from the start, but Muscovite pride insisted that the war must go on. Then came the Battle of the Sea of Japan and the final downfall of Russian hopes of ever regaining the command of the sea.

This was the "psychological moment," the chance for which the President had waited. Perhaps other rulers recognized it, but none of them dared act, for none of them occupied a disinterested position. France, as the ally of Russia, and England, as the ally of Japan, were bound to remain silent and watch the struggle continue, while the German emperor was only too glad to see Russian power completely broken. Clearly, the United States was the only nation that could not be accused of having selfish motives in asking for a cessation of hostilities, and President Roosevelt was the only statesman who could undertake the delicate task of bringing the belligerents together in conference.

How successfully he accomplished this feat is well remembered, and it is doubly to his credit that when he had actually brought the accredited envoys to the appointed place, introduced them and wished them success, he had the good sense to retire completely, leaving them to work out the problem, if possible, to a mutually satisfactory agreement. In doing this he respected the often-expressed wish of both Japan and Russia to settle their quarrel between themselves, without the interference of outsiders. But Mr. Roosevelt did not entirely wash his hands of the affair. He gave the envoys to understand that if their own resources should fail they would find him as ready to do what he could to save the craft as he had been to launch it.

A little more than a week ago it was announced that the peace conference was headed for the rocks. This gave the President his second chance, and he went to work with a determination to save it which inspired even the discouraged envoys. He appealed directly to the Czar and the Mikado; he urged concessions from each side; his representations to both were based on the same grounds—the criminal folly of sacrificing thousands of additional lives and millions of additional money in settling by force of arms a contention which could be settled by diplomacy if both sides would make concessions. The world admired his spirit and perseverance, but shook its head. The stubborn attitude of both nations seemingly made peace impossible. Until yesterday there were few optimists, and it is doubtful whether even the President was optimistic. But he kept everlastingly at it and won.

Nothing succeeds like success, and the approved way to spell success nowadays is R-o-o-s-e-v-e-l-t.

SPRINKLING PIKE'S PEAK AVENUE.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

I am a recent arrival in your beautiful city, and am stopping on Pike's Peak avenue east. It is a broad, beautiful street, and the only thing the matter with it is that they don't keep the dust down. I have heard numerous complaints in regard to this nuisance, and if you will please publish this letter the proper authorities may see it and try to make this much-needed improvement. Give us some water on Pike's Peak avenue from the railroad crossing west and you will please a lot of property owners and tourists.

JOHN W. LEWLYNN.

SUGGESTS HONORING ROOSEVELT.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

Now that peace has been declared, would it not be appropriate for the citizens of Colorado Springs to show their appreciation of the splendid achievement of President Roosevelt by decorating their places of business and residences with the national colors? True, every patriotic American thrills at the result; but that is not enough. Let us make it manifest through our decorations, and finally let our mayor send a message of cheer to the president, informing him of the action taken by our citizens.

E. J. KELSEY.

Near to Nature

MAKING IT PLEASANT FOR MR. TROOP.

A few days ago Mrs. Ben Troop, wife of a Grand Island passenger conductor, was pumping from a cistern and she heard a splash in the water below. She peered over in the water in time to see the widening circle of ripples caused by something falling in. She felt in her belt where she carried her watch and it was gone. She informed Mr. Troop and he immediately went to work to empty the cistern of water. After several hours' work he finally succeeded in getting the cistern dry and about that time Mrs. Troop found the watch in a bureau drawer in her bedroom.—Kansas City Journal.

"THIS good wine," the landlord repeated. "And no charge. Drink, young sir, and—"

"I drink not on compulsion," the student answered.

Messer Grio stared. "What!" he roared. "You—"

"I drink not upon compulsion," the young man repeated, and this time he spoke clearly and firmly. "That the gentleman asked me courteously to drink with him, that were another matter. But—"

"She," the vintner muttered, nudging him in pure kindness. "Drink, man, and a fico for his courtesy so the wine be old! When the drink is in, the sense is out, and," lowering his voice, "he'll let your blood to a certainty, if you will not humor him."

But the gripping faces in the doorway hardened the student in his resolution. "I drink not on compulsion," he repeated stubbornly. And he rose from his seat.

"You drink not!" Grio exclaimed. "You drink not? Then by the living—"

"For Heaven's sake!" the landlord cried, and threw himself between them. "Messer Grio! Gentlemen!"

But the bully, drunk and fuming, twitched him aside. "Under compulsion, eh!" he sneered. "You drink not under compulsion, don't you, my lad? Let me tell you," he continued with ferocity, "you will drink when I please, and where I please, and as often as I please, and as much as I please, you meal-worm! You half-weaned puppy! Take that glass, d'you hear, and say after me, Devil take—"

"Messer Grio!" the landlord protested.

"Devil take"—for a moment a hiccough gave him pause—"all finchers! Take the glass, young man! That is well! I see you will come to it! Now say after me, Devil take—"

"That!" the student retorted, and flung the wine in the bully's face.

The landlord shrieked; the other guests rose hurriedly from their seats and got aside. Fortunately the wine blinded the man for a moment, and he recoiled, spitting curses and darting his sword hither and thither in impotent rage. By the time he had cleared his eyes the youth had got to his bundle, and, freeing his blade, placed himself in a posture of defense. His face was pale, but with the pallor of excitement rather than of fear, and the firm set of his mouth and the smouldering fire in his eyes as he completed the drunken bravo, no less than the manner in which he handled his weapon, showed him as ready to pursue as he had been hardy to undertake the quarrel.

He gave proof of forethought, too. "Witness all, he drew first!" he cried; and his eyes quitting Grio, for the briefest instant sought to meet the merchants' gaze. "I am on my defense. I call all here to witness that he has thrust this quarrel upon me!"

The landlord wrung his hands. "Oh dear, oh dear!" he cried. "In Heaven's name, gentlemen, put up! put up! Stop them! Will no one stop them!" And in despair, seeing no one move to arrest them, he made as if he would stand between them.

But the bully flourished his blade about his ears, and with a cry the good men saved himself. "Out, skinker!" Grio cried grimly. "And you, say your prayers, puppy. Before you are five minutes older I will spit you like a partridge, though I cross the frontier for it. You have basted me with wine; I will baste you after another fashion! On guard! On guard, and—"

"What is this?"

The voice stayed Grio's tongue and checked his foot in the very instant of assault. The student, watching, his blade and awaiting the attack, was surprised to see his point waver and drop. Was it a trick, he wondered? A stratagem? No, for a silence fell on the room, while those who held the floor hastened to efface themselves against the wall, as if they at any rate had nothing to do with the fracas. And next moment Grio shrugged his shoulders, and with a half-stifled curse stood back.

The same question in the same tone. This time the student saw whose voice it was had stayed Grio's arm. Within the door a pace in front of two or three attendants, who had displaced the roisterers on the threshold, stood a spare dry-looking man of middle height, wearing his hat, and displaying a gold chain of office across the breast of his black velvet cloak. In age about 60, he had nothing that at a first glance seemed to call for a second: his small pinched features, and the downward curl of the lip, which his moustache and clipped beard failed to hide, indicated a nature lavish and severe rather than powerful. On nearer observation, the restless eyes, keen and piercing, asserted themselves and redeemed the face from insignificance. When, as on this occasion, their glances were supported by the terrors of the state, it was not difficult to understand why Messer Blondel, the syndic, though no great man to look at, had both weight with the masses and a hold not to be denied over his colleagues in the council.

No one took on himself to answer the question he had put, and in a voice thin and querulous, but with a lurking venom in its tone, "What is this?" the great man repeated, looking from one to another. "Are we in Geneva, or in Venice? Under the skirts of the scarlet woman, or where the magistrates bear not the sword in vain? Good Mr. Landlord, are those your professions? Your ballmen should sleep ill tonight, for they are likely to answer roundly for this! And whom have we sparking it here?" he continued. "Drawing and swearing and turning into profligate's tavern a place that should be for the sober entertainment of travelers! Whom have we here—eh! Let me see them! Ah!"

He paused rather suddenly, as his eyes met Grio's: and a little of his dignity fell from him with the pause. His manner underwent a subtle change from the judicial to the paternal. When he resumed, he wagged his head tolerantly, and a modicum of sorrow mingled with his anger. "Ah, Messer Grio! Messer Grio!" he said, "it is you, is it? For shame! For shame! This is sad, this is lamentable! Some indulgence, it is true"—he coughed—"may be due after late events, and to certain who have borne part in them. But this goes too far! too far by a long way!"

"It was not I began it!" the bully muttered sullenly, a mixture of bravado and apology in his bearing. He sheathed his blade, and thrust the long scabbard behind him. "He threw a glass of wine in my face, Syndic, that is the truth. Is an old soldier who has shed blood for Geneva to swallow that, and give God thanks?"

The Syndic turned to the student, and licked his lips, his features more pinched than usual. "Are these your manners?" he said. "If so, they are not the manners of Geneva! Your name, young man, and your dwelling place?"

"My name is Claude Mercier, last from Chatillon in Burgundy," the young man answered firmly. "For the rest, I did no otherwise than you, sir, must have done in my case!"

The magistrate snorted. "I!"

"Being treated as I was!" the young man protested. "He would have me drink whether I would or no! And in terms no man of honor could bear!"

"Honor!" the Syndic retorted, and on the word exploded in great wrath. "Honor, say you? Then I know who is in fault. When men of your race talk of honor 'tis easy to saddle the horse. I will teach you that we know naught of honor in Geneva, but only of service! And naught of punctilios, but much of modest behavior! It is such hot blood as yours that is at the root of brawlings and disorders and such-like, to the scandal of the community; and to cool it I will commit you to the town gaol until tomorrow! Convey him thither," he continued, turning sharply to his followers, "and see him safely bestowed in the stocks. Tomorrow I will hear if he be penitent, and perhaps, if he be in a cooler temper—"

But the young man, aghast at this sudden disgrace, could be silent no longer. "But, sir," he protested eloquently, "I had no choice. It was no quarrel of my beginning. I did but refuse to drink, and when he—"

"Silence, sirrah!" the Syndic cried, brutally cutting him short. "You will do well to be quiet!" And he was in the act of biding his people bear their prisoner out without more ado when one of the merchants ventured to put in a word.

"May I say," he interposed timidly, "that until this happened, Messer Blondel, the young man's conduct was all that could be desired?"

"Are you of his company?"

"No sir."

"Then best keep out of it," the magistrate retorted, sharply. "And you," to his followers, "did you hear me? Away with him!"

But as the men advanced to execute the order, the young man stepped forward. "One moment!" he said. "A moment only, sir. I caught the name of Blondel. Am I speaking to Messer Robert Blondel?"

The Syndic nodded ungraciously. "Yes," he said, "I am he. What of it?"

"Only this, that I have a letter for him," the student answered, groping with trembling fingers in his pouch. "From my uncle, the Sieur de Beauvis of Nocle, by Dijon."

"The Sieur de Beauvis?"

"Yes."

"He is your uncle?"

"Yes."

"So! To be sure, I remember now," Blondel continued, nodding. "His name is Mercier. Certainly, it was. Well, give me the letter." His tone was still harsh, but it was not the same, and when he had broken the seal and read the letter—with a look half contemptuous, half uneasy—his brow cleared a little. "It were well young people knew better what became of them," he cried, peevishly shrugging his shoulders. "It would save us all a great deal. However, for this time, as you are a stranger and well credited, I find, you may go. But let it be a lesson to you, do you hear? Let it be a lesson to you, young man. Geneva," pompously, "is no place for brawling, and if you came hither for that, you will quickly find yourself between bars. See that you go to a fit lodging tomorrow, and do you Mr. Landlord, have a care that he leaves you."

The young man's heart was full, but he had the wisdom to keep his temper and say no more. The Syndic on his part was glad on second thoughts to be free from the matter. He was turning to go when it seemed to strike him that he owed something more to the bearer of the letter. He turned back. "Yes," he said, "I had forgotten. This week I am busy. But next week or some convenient day come to me, young sir, and I may be able to give you a word of advice. In the forenoon will be best. Until then—see to your behavior!"

The young man bowed and waited, standing where he was, until the bustle attending the Syndic's departure had quite died away. The he turned. "Now, Messer Grio," he said briskly, "for my part, I am ready."

But Messer Grio had slipped away some minutes before.

CHAPTER II.

THE HOUSE ON THE RAMPARTS.

The affair at the inn which had threatened to turn out so unpleasantly for our hero, should have gone some way toward destroying the illusions with which he had entered Geneva. But faith is strong in the young, and hope stronger. The traditions of his boyhood and his fireside, and the stories animate with affection for the cradle of the faith, to which he had listened at his father's knee, were not to be overridden by the shadow of an injustice, which, in the end, had not fallen. When the young man went abroad next morning and took a full view of the [illegible] St. Peter, of which his father had spoken—when from those walls which had defied through so many months the daily and nightly threats of an ever-present enemy, he looked on the sites of conflicts still famous and on farmsteads but half risen from their ruins—when above all, he remembered for what those walls stood, and that here, on the borders of the blue lake, and within sight of the glittering peaks which charmed his eyes—if in any one place in Europe—the battle of knowledge and freedom had been fought, and the rule of the monk and the Inquisitor cast down, his old enthusiasm revived. He thirsted, for fresh conflicts, for new occasions, and it is to be feared dreamt more of the sword than of the sacred book which he had come to study, and which, in Geneva, went hand in hand with it.

In the fervor of his thoughts and in the multitude of new interests which opened before him, he had well-nigh forgotten the Syndic's warning before he had walked a mile, nor might he have given a second thought to it but for the need which lay upon him of finding a new lodging before night. In pursuit of this he presently took his way to the Corraterie, a row of gabled houses at the western end of the High Tower, built within the ramparts and enjoying over them a view of the open country and the Pura. The houses [illegible] some distance parallel with the rampart, then retired inward and again came down to it: in this way enclosing a triangular open space or terrace. They formed of themselves an inner line of defence, pierced at the point farthest from the rampart by the Porta Tertasse, a gate it is true, which was often open even at night, for the wall even in front of the Carraterie, though low on the town side, looked down from a great height on the ditch and the low meadows that fringed the Rhone. Trees planted along the ramparts shaded this triangular space, and made it a favourite lounge from which the inhabitants of that quarter of the town could view the mountains and the sunset while tasting the freshness of the evening air.

A score of times had Claude Mercier listened to a description of this row of gray houses dominating the ramparts. Now he saw it, and, charmed by the position and the aspect, he trembled lest he should fail to secure a lodging in the house which had sheltered his father's youth. Heedless of the suspicious glances shot at him by the watch at the Porte Tertasse, he consulted the rough plan which his father had made for him—consulted it rather to assure himself against error than because he felt doubt. The precaution taken, he made for a house a little to the right of the Tertasse gate as one looks to the country. He mounted by four steep steps to the door and knocked on it.

So quickly as to disconcert him it was opened. A lanky youth about his own age bounced out. The lad wore a cap and carried two or three books under his arm, much as if he had been starting [illegible] when the summons came. The two gazed at one another a moment, then "Does Madame Royaume live here?" Claude asked.

[illegible] light eyes, said, curtly that she did.

Do you know if she has a vacant room?" Mercier ask timidly.

"She will have one tonight!" the youth answered with temper in his tone, and he dashed down the steps and went off along the street without ceremony or explanation. Viewed from behind, he had a thin neck which agreed well with a small chin.

The door remained open, and, after hesitating a moment, Claude tapped once again with his foot. Receiving no answer, he ventured over the threshold, and found himself in the living room of the house. It was cool, spacious and well-ordered, although in a corner the boarded-up stairs leading to the higher floors bulked heavily. On the left of the entrance a wooden settle flanked a wide fire place, in front of which a small heavy table was placed. Another table a little bigger stood in the middle of the room. Two or three dark prints—one a portrait of Calvin—with a framed copy of the Geneva catechism, and a small shelf of books, took something from the plainness and added something to the comfort of the apartment, which boasted besides a couple of old oaken dressers highly polished and gleaming with long rows of pewter ware. Two doors stood opposite the entrance and appeared to lead—for one of them stood open—to a couple of closets: bedrooms they could hardly be called, yet in one of them Claude knew that his father had slept. And his heart warmed to it.

The house was still, the room was somewhat dark, the windows being low and long, strongly barred, and shaded by the trees, through the cool greenery of which the light filtered in. The young man stood a moment, and, hearing no footsteps or movement, wondered what he should do. At length he ventured to the door of the staircase, and, opening it, coughed. Still no one answered or came, and unwilling to intrude farther he turned about and waited on the hearth. In a corner behind the settle he noticed two half pikes and a long-handled sword, on the seat of the settle itself lay a thin folio bound in stained sheepskin. A log smouldered on the hearth, and below the great black pot which hung over it two or three pans and pipkins set deep among the white ashes. Save for these there was no sign in the room of a woman's hand or use. And he wondered. Certainly the young man who had departed so hurriedly said it was Madame Royaume's. There could be no mistake.

Well, he would go and come again. But, even as he formed the resolution and turned toward the outer door—which he had left open—he heard a faint sound above, a step light but slow. It seemed to start from the uppermost floor of all, so long was it in descending; so long was it before, waiting on the hearth can in hand, he saw a shadow darken the line below the staircase door. A second later this opened and a young girl entered and closed it behind her. She did not see him. Unconscious of his presence, she crossed the floor and shut the outer door.

PEACE TERMS BITTER PILL FOR THE JAPANESE PEOPLE

Oscar King Davis, Noted War Correspondent, Discusses Probable Effect of Mikado's Concessions to the Czar---What Japan Wins.

"The concessions of Japan as to indemnity and dividing the island of Sakhalin will be as unpopular with the Japanese people as anything could be," said Oscar King Davis, the noted war correspondent, who represented the New York Journal with the Japanese army during the early part of the war, made last night at his home, 1528 North Nevada avenue. "The people of Japan have been worked up to a high pitch over the indemnity question and practically all of them expected some indemnity from Russia. The Japanese newspapers have insisted on indemnity to a great extent.

"It is a surprise to me that Japan yielded any part of the Sakhalin island. The official Gazette at Tokio recently published a list of capes, bays and promontories of the island in which the names had been changed from Russian to Japanese. The island was renamed Karafuto.

"These facts looked significant to me, coming from a country where the news published in papers is closely watched by the government, and form the basis for my expectation that the people of Japan will be disappointed in the terms made with Russia.

"The only fact that can counterbalance this disappointment will be the knowledge that it is the emperor's will.

"Of course, Japan has gained a great deal by the war. Not only has she gained all the points for which war was declared, but a number of actual material benefits, including the lease of Port Arthur, the establishment of a protectorate over Korea, a preponderance of influence in China, which probably can never be successfully assailed by any other power, and the gaining of the south half of Sakhalin island. She will probably get two or three hundred million dollars from Russia, which is perhaps one-half of her war expenses. She has captured enough Russian warships to double her navy, besides fifty merchant vessels.

"But probably of vaster importance to Japan is the fact that she has established herself in the eyes of nations as a tremendous world power, and I do not doubt but that it will alter the attitude of Japan towards other powers. The Japanese people will not be so difficult to deal with as before the war.

"Japan stands before the world as showing the greatest magnanimity ever known at the close of a successfully waged war. She goes far ahead of what the United States did at the close of the Spanish war.

"The prestige lost by Russia is far greater than the actual costs of the war to her. She has now lost all hope of an open sea to her Siberian possessions."

FINES REDUCED AND CASE IS DISMISSED

Counsel for Rebecca J. Guthrie and W. J. Guthrie, who were fined in the police court three weeks ago $75 and costs each for maintaining a disorderly house and took an appeal to the county court, appeared in the latter court yesterday and entered an order dismissing the appeal at the costs of the defendants. Efforts were made with Police Judge Toombs to secure a reduction of the fines imposed, but the court declined to make any reduction. The matter was then taken up with City Attorney W. C. Robinson and Acting Mayor A. M. Holden, with the result that the cases were dismissed yesterday. Upon recommendation of the city attorney the acting mayor reduced the fines to $50 each, or a total of $100, with the understanding that Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie desired to locate in some other city, but the amount should be paid before they left Colorado Springs.

ARRESTED—Byron Buford, colored, was arrested by Constable Larrabee at 6 o'clock last evening upon a John Doe warrant issued by Justice Ruby, charging disturbance and assault. Bell, a young man about 17 years of age, who alleged that Monday night he had a little trouble with Buford on Tejon street, and the latter struck him with a club. The case will be called up before Justice Ruby today.

TWO WOMEN FIGHT OVER SIXTY CENTS

Numerous scratches upon her face and hands supported the statement made by Mrs. Ida Reid, who resides on North Spruce street, when she appeared before Police Judge Toombs yesterday and swore to a complaint charging Mrs. Anna Kennedy with assault and disturbance. Mrs. Kennedy resides at 710 North Spruce street and claimed 60 cents due her from Mrs. Reid for laundry work. The two met on Valley avenue about 9 o'clock yesterday morning and Mrs. Kennedy is alleged to have informed Mrs. Reid that she wanted the 60 cents at once or she would resort to urgent means. From the appearance of the complainant's face the police are of the opinion that the threat was carried out. "Did Mrs. Kennedy use any profane language?" was asked the complainant. "She swore so much the air is still blue over there," was the reply, and the court added disturbance to the assault charge. The case will be tried this morning.

DUNCAN J. M'NEILL REPORTED MISSING

Word was received in this city yesterday that Duncan J. McNeill, former treasurer of Teller county, is reported missing, leaving some debts. Mr. McNeill was last seen at the Democratic club in Denver on Friday, when he told a friend that he was going out of the city, but would return Monday. At Cripple Creek it is alleged that John and Joseph Murphy loaned McNeill $300 with which to liquidate a note at one of the banks, but the note had not been taken up. The Murphys were interested with McNeill in a lease on the Independence Consolidated. Mr. McNeill served two terms as county treasurer, his last term expiring last January. He is well known here.

The American Girl.

WHAT MAKES HER POPULAR.

The American girl is admired and liked at home and abroad because she is the happiest, usually the healthiest and friendliest of girls. She is fond of life and is alive to everything beautiful and good in existence. Mrs. Langtry has said that the American woman has little to learn from her English sisters.

Dr. Pierce, the specialist in women's diseases, of Buffalo, N. Y., advises simple exercises for women, preferably in the out-door air. But many women are confined to the house and their household duties or their business confines them to poorly ventilated rooms.

If a woman suffers from a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, she naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the womanly organs. In 98 per cent. of cases the seat of the difficulty is here and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The local disorder and inflammation of the delicate special organs of the sex should be treated steadily and systematically.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 for any case of Leucorrhœa, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

LAWN FETE A SOCIETY EVENT

WILL BE GIVEN THIS AFTERNOON FOR BENEFIT OF THE DAY NURSERY ASSOCIATION.

The lawn fete this afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock on the grounds surrounding the residence of Miss Maynard, 730 North Cascade avenue, in aid of the Colorado Springs Day Nursery association will be a leading society event of the closing summer.

Although planned for children of the city, all interested are urged to attend. Mrs. J. A. Hayes and Mrs. D. C. MacNeill will preside at the tea table and assisting them will be several well known young society men.

Teas will be served by Mrs. E. W. Giddings, Mrs. J. A. Eockhart and Miss Warren. Miss Palmer will be at the flower table, assisted by Mrs. William Cooke Dimick, Mrs. Lucius M. Cuthbert, Misses Gladys and Gwendolin Young.

Miss Daisy Anderson and Miss May Howbert will preside at the candy table, and Mrs. S. A. Swenson will have charge of the lemonade booth. The members of the entertainment committee are Mrs. H. C. Lowe, Mrs. Percy Hagerman, and Mrs. T. F. DeWitt.

There will be music by Casser's orchestra, and a program of races for prizes for the children.

BOOSTERS READY FOR THE EAGLE

LEAVE TOMORROW NIGHT FOR PORTLAND TO LAND LETTER CARRIERS HOME FOR THIS CITY.

Brooks Frione, delegate from the Colorado Springs Letter Carriers association to the national convention, Henry Russell Wray, secretary of the chamber of commerce, T. L. Stanley, a popular letter carrier, and H. S. Poley, a well-known clerk in the post-office, will leave tomorrow night to attend the convention at Portland, which opens next Monday, and boost for the location of the national home in Colorado Springs. They will reach the convention city Sunday.

Mr. Poley, who was formerly a photographer here, will take with him the slides used in boosting Colorado Springs at the I. T. U. convention at Toronto, in addition to 100 other scenic views of Colorado. These views will be exhibited in the convention hall every evening, and will undoubtedly prove as big an argument for the location of the home here as they did at the Toronto convention. Included in the series of 200 slides will be views of the Printers home, Colorado Springs and scenes along the Short Line and D. & R. G. roads.

Colorado will be represented at the convention by about 12 delegates who will carry proxies for the remainder of the state. All the second class offices in the state will be for Colorado Springs, Tim Stanley carrying many of their proxies. Delegates from various parts of the country have begun arriving in this city in small numbers on their way to the convention. The Texas delegation, carrying about 40 votes, will arrive here today. Secretary E. J. Cantwell is ill in Denver, and it is not likely that he will be able to visit this city until his return trip.

CHAUFFEUR FINED FOR VIOLATING SPEED LIMIT

Several automobile owners appeared in the police court yesterday for the purpose of watching the trial of the cases scheduled for hearing. The case against W. W. Price, charged with violating the speed limit, was continued until today. The case against C. M. MacNeill was not called up as the service of the summons had not been perfected.

C. D. Adams was testing his machine when Officer McReynolds caught him going at a speed of about 30 miles an hour. The court imposed a fine of $25 and costs.

W. A. Gibbs, chauffeur for C. A. Baldwin, was traveling at a speed of 18.17 miles an hour when Officer Swanson timed him, and while the law permits 18 miles an hour the court held that the speed above that allowed was so slight that the city had not established its case beyond a question of a doubt. The court held that while Gibbs may not have broken the law, he was near enough to crack it, and gave the defendant a warning to be more careful in the future. Gibbs was discharged.

POPEJOY OPPOSES DISMISSAL OF SUIT

In the district court Attorney Campbell filed an affidavit in the case of Leslie W. Popejoy vs. Tyson S. Dines et al., opposing the motion of the defendants to dismiss the suit. A motion to require the defendants to produce certain books and papers relative to the alleged grubstake agreement between the plaintiff and the late W. S. Stratton, was also filed with a notice that the motion would be called up for argument on Thursday, August 31.

An amended complaint in the case of Jas. E. Bird against Henry W. Wyman was filed in the district court yesterday. The action is to recover $2,500 damages for alleged false representations in order to induce the plaintiff to sell his business in St. Louis and come to this city and rent the Missouri house at 122 South Nevada avenue from the defendant.

PLAN NEW YEAR'S WORK FOR Y. M. C. A.

MEMBERS OF BOYS' CABINET ELECTED—NEW FURNITURE INSTALLED—OUTLINE OF CLASSES.

At a called meeting of the members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. last evening, the work of the year was outlined and the cabinet was elected. This cabinet consists of the chairmen of the various committees, and is composed of Chester Whittaker, meetings committee for older boys; Frank Cheley, meetings committee for younger boys; Ernest Sinton, missionary work; Robert Hamilton, shop clubs; Albert Ellingwood, educational clubs; Philip Nohe, Earl Foster, and Chas. St. John, extension work committee; the physical committee, composed of Frank Todd, for the employed boys; Harland West, older boys, and Dwight Sisco, intermediates; and the chairman of the Bible study committee to be elected. The cabinet will hold a meeting shortly to organize and appoint the various committees.

The work of the boys' department for the fall and winter months will begin next week under J. G. Arnold, when the Bible classes, educational and shop clubs, and other societies will be organized and the gymnasium again opened for work. The 15 leaders of the Bible classes will hold a meeting in North Cheyenne canon Friday night to plan for the year's work and elect a representative on the cabinet.

About $100 worth of new furniture has just been installed in the boys' department, being placed in the games and reading rooms. Three basement rooms will this year be set aside for the electrical, manual training and other clubs.

UNSANITARY CONDITIONS ARE THE RULE AT VERNAL.

L. C. Wahl, a former resident of this city, who is now engaged in the mining business in Cripple Creek and has been at Vernal ever since the beginning of the reclamation for the Uintah reservation lands, is quoted in the Daily Sentinel of Grand Junction as saying that the sanitary conditions at Vernal are in a frightful condition. Unless heroic measures are taken he believes that there will be an epidemic of typhoid fever. In the streets and along the ditches manure and other refuse is allowed to stand. Drinking water is taken from wells not over ten feet deep and is all polluted seepage.

Mr. Wahl says that many of those now there are suffering from dysentery. A lemon cannot be purchased in the town. It is his opinion that the government is responsible for existing conditions.

IN JAIL ON STRENGTH OF CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

Oliver Walker is in the city jail upon a charge of suspicion in connection with a robbery of a pocketbook from a nurse employed at 221 North El Paso street. Walker was engaged to deliver a trunk at the residence and a little later a brown leather pocketbook was missed. In the pocketbook was a $2 bill, a $1 bill, three coppers and some other small change and papers. The matter was reported to the police and city detectives went to work upon the case. It was found that Walker after delivering the trunk at 221 North El Paso street made a trip into the eastern portion of the city, going past the corner of Wahsatch avenue and Tampa street. It was at this corner that W. H. Duncan, janitor at the court house, found the empty pocketbook in the weeds. The officers also found that Walker had changed a $1 bill in buying four sandwiches at the Park bakery, receiving 80 cents in change. When Walker was arrested a search of his clothing disclosed a $2 bill, some small change and three coppers.

LIGHTNING STRUCK HOUSE AND CAUSED SMALL FIRE

Lightning yesterday worked overtime, scattering its favors freely over the south and east side. Some delay was experienced by the street car people by the burning of fuses, and some trouble was caused to the telephone company. At the corner of Vermijo and Weber streets lightning struck a house, but followed the electric wires and did no damage. At the fire department's central station every fuse was blown out, but they were quickly replaced, so when an alarm was turned in at 3:40 p. m. from box 39 it was received and a prompt response was made. The fire was at 929 East Vermijo street, owned by R. E. Van Winkle.

PEACE IS ASSURED

Peace News Has Good Effect on New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, August 29.—Those who expected a tremendous manifestation of bullish enthusiasm to follow the peace news from Portsmouth in the course of today's stock market must have been somewhat disappointed. To be sure, the early announcement brought an upward spurt in part of the list, but this movement was not well sustained, being followed by periods of dullness and some hesitancy. Operations broadened later, and the momentous event was received with satisfaction by the banking interests, relief being expressed at the elimination of every disturbing factor. The attention of these same banking interests will now doubtless be engaged in figuring upon the peace loans, which it is generally assumed both Russia and Japan will find it convenient to negotiate.

The conspicuous feature at the opening here was Canadian Pacific, which advanced to a new high record on buying credited to foreign interests. There was a renewal of recent pressure on Reading and some of the other coalers moved in sympathy, but later recovered. Amalgamated Copper was strong, with another advance, the fifth within a week in the price of metal. Of the other standard issues, Union Pacific, which sold ex dividend at 2½ per cent, was notable. Although the news from Portsmouth became known soon after noon, reports discrediting it were current and it was not until an hour or more later that traders seemed to grasp its significance.

The better tone was well maintained, the closing hours bringing prices to the highest level of the day.

The bond market advanced in sympathy with the rise in the Japanese governments. Total sales, par value, $1,020,000.

United States bonds were all unchanged on call.

ORAL SERPENT FOUND RED BIRD

Special to the Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 29.—A carload of ore is ready to be hauled from the Red Bird claim of the National company, situated at the southern boundary of the city of Cripple Creek. It will be the first lot to leave the mine in several years and is to be marketed to determine the value of the shoots.

The 200 and 300-foot levels of the Red Bird have been opened for several hundred feet. Soon after entering the property the Consolidated Leasing company, lessee, found that the work done had exposed ore in two shoots, one narrow and superior, the other wide and ordinary of content. Sampling suggested such a condition. Whether or not the lessee is correct in estimates will be determined in the course of two or three weeks, when returns will have been received on the initial lot.

WILL PAY INCREASED FINDLEY DIVIDEND

Although the amount of the regular monthly dividend of the Findley Gold Mining company will not be known until the stockholders of the company receive their checks on Friday morning, it is understood in mining circles that the excellent showing made by the mine recently will warrant an increased dividend this month.

The regular dividend heretofore has been one cent a share, which makes a monthly disbursement of $12,500 on a capital stock of 1,250,000 shares. The mine has been earning about $26,000 a month recently, which would allow a two-cent dividend.

The mine is making an excellent showing and several new bodies of ore have been opened up. A large body has just been struck, north of the Shurtloff shaft. It is 40 feet wide and runs two to three ounces, or from $40 to $60, to the ton.

Another important discovery has been the locating in the second level of the Findley of the cross vein which has been prospected with such good results two miles 800 to the 1,200-foot levels in the Stratton properties. This vein was found in prospecting from the Shurtloff shaft, and is of the same character as that met with in the deeper levels, being a good grade of fluorine and free from the oxidization which it had been feared would affect it.

DEERHORN CLAIM AND LADY SUE GOOD PRODUCERS

Special to the Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 29.—The gossip saying about shipping the scenery describes effort on the Deerhorn claim of the Stratton estate, situated on the summit of Globe hill, where Du Masters and associate lessees are gathering together the golden quartz.

During the month they have shipped seven or eight cars having a content upward of one ounce of metal to the ton. It came from the surface, grass roots forming no insignificant part of the output. In the course of a few weeks the surface will have been pretty well scraped, after which extensions of the shoot will be sought at depth.

Over on the Lady Stith of the Stratton estate nearby, George Keener, lessee, is assembling ore in large quantities and earning steadily from its sale. This is also at the surface, but exploration at a depth of 700 feet is being engaged in.

CRIPPLE CREEK MINING STOCKS

Special to the Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 29.—Following are today's sale on the stock exchange: Acacia, 2,000 at 10; Am. Con., 5,000, at 3; Anchor, 5,000, at 1¾; C. C. Con., 2,000, at 10½; Findley, 1,000, at 77¾; Gold Bond, 3,000, at 1¾; Keystone, 3,000, at 2¾ and 3,000 at 3; Lexington, 2,000, at 4¾; Little Nell, 5,000, at 2¾; McKinney Extension, 1,000, at 3; National, 5,000, at 2¾; Rattler, 3,000, at 1¾; Volcano, 10,000, at 9.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN IS SHOWING UP WELL

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 29.—Bins have been erected at a shaft on the north block of the Rocky Mountain property, on Beacon hill, to receive the ore that Lessee Thomas Head struck several days ago. The first lot will be marketed next week. It will be of 10 or 12 tons and is expected to yield upward of $25 in gold to the ton. The shoot has been followed vertically for 20 feet from grass roots, is two or more feet in width and is fairly charged with sylvanite.

Howland and seven associates are exploring the south block at a depth of 65 feet. Conditions are attractive. A long lateral has been run on the Airhart block at a depth of 264 feet.

DOCTOR-JACK POT IS DROPPED FROM LISTS

The Doctor-Jack Pot Consolidated Mining company has been dropped from the call of the Colorado Springs Mining Stock exchange. This action was taken Monday because of the fact that this company has been dissolved. No application has been made for admission to the mines list by the reorganized Doctor-Jack Pot Mining company, and it is not probable that any will be made until after the settlement of the suit instituted by Lou G. Harman, Josiah Winchester, et al., stockholders in the company, to set aside the sale of the property and to secure the appointment of a receiver.

WONDERFUL POSSIBILITIES NOTED CRESSON PROPERTY

Special to the Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 29.—Seven hundred tons of ore having an average content in yellow metal will be the output from the Cresson mine this month. Less than two months ago there was little ore in sight.

Since Richard Roelofs has succeeded to the superintendency the possibilities which the ground offered have been taken advantage of on all sides and the end is not yet. Superintendent Roelofs has followed two veins, each containing a shoot, and has exposed ore horizontally for 100 feet in each. There is ore at the face of the drifts, in the roof, the floor and in other directions. One vein is well oxydized and the other of the usual sylvanite type. That the shoots are large may be gathered from the fact that square sets are used in timbering.

These exposures are at a depth of 600 feet and have been made for the Bull Hill Mining & Development company, lessee, the stockholders of which are stockholders in the Cresson company. They are elated with the discovery and the development that has followed, not only because of the quantity of ore exposed, but because all work to date has shown that the veins will course through the property for a long distance, the strike having been made in the center of the estate, which is of four or more claims. Ore has been exposed for a short distance on the upper level at a depth of 300 feet. It is believed to be part of the shoot that is responding below, but sufficient work to determine this has not been done. One of the shoots is being followed south, while development is advancing in other directions on the cross body. No attempt is being made to produce heavily, effort being centered on development. The ore marketed is that broken in the course of horizontal work, no stoping having been started. However, the Bull Hill Mining & Development company has earned substantially during the current month and in the meantime has had its shoots opened on liberal lines.

WEAKNESS DEVELOPS

Wheat, Corn and Oats Decline---Provisions Show Some Strength.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Weakness in the wheat pit, developed after trading was well under way. At the opening the market was quite steady, initial quotation on September being unchanged to 1-8 higher at 79 1-2 to 79 5-8. The principal influences were small local receipts, and the comparatively steady tone of the cables, notwithstanding a decline here yesterday. The announcement of the amicable settlement of peace negotiations at Portsmouth had some effect on late trading. For September the lowest point of the day was reached at 78 3-8. A slight rally occurred on recovering by shorts, but the close was weak with September at 78 7-8 @ 79. December opened 1-8 lower to 1-4 higher at 81 3-8 @ 1-2, sold off to 80 3-8 @ 1-2 and closed 5-8 lower at 80 5-8.

Weakness prevailed in the corn pit the entire day. September opened unchanged to 1-8 @ 1-4 lower, at 52 3-4 @ 7-8 to 53, sold off to 51 7-8 and closed with a loss of 1-4 @ 3-8 at 52 3-4 @ 7-8. Oats were weak in sympathy with the grains. September opened a shade to 1-8 @ 1-4c lower at 25 1-2 @ 5-8 to 25 5-8 @ 3-4, sold between 25 1-2 and 25 3-4 @ 7-8 and closed at 25 1-2. December ranged between 26 1-2 and 26 5-8 @ 3-4 and closed at 26 1-2 @ 5-8.

Active support from prominent packers imparted strength to the provision market. At the close September pork was up 27 1-2 at $14.92 1-2. Lard was up 7 1-2 at 7.92 1-2. Ribs were 3 1-2 @ 5c higher at $8.30 and $8.82 1-2.

BONANZA ORE OPENED ON IRONCLAD HILL

Special to the Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 29.—That another bonanza shoot has been struck on Ironclad hill is believed by officials of the W. P. H. Leasing company. Assays indicate a big content in yellow metal.

The W. H. P. Leasing company obtained a block of the famous property several months ago. A shaft was started at grass roots and has been industriously continued to the objective, the 300-foot point, despite mineral temptations that appeared along the way.

At the 300-foot point a crosscut was driven south for 200 feet to a vein. It is in this vein that conditions as promised have been found. Reports that emanate from Ironclad hill are to the effect that a shoot 20 feet wide has been opened and that assays indicate a gold content that ranges from $160 to $1,300 to the ton. The ore is oxydized and contains native gold. No mill test has been made.

While the report lacks confirmation by an authority, it is not discredited in mining circles.

HERBINE.
Renders the bile more fluid and thus helps the blood to flow; it affords prompt relief from biliousness, indigestion, sick and nervous headaches, and over-indulgence in food and drink.
G. L. Caldwell, Agt. M. K. and T. R. R., Checotah, Ind. Ter., writes, April 18, 1905: "I was sick for over two years with enlargement of the liver and spleen. The doctors did me no good, and I had given up all hope of being cured, when my druggist advised me to use Herbine. It has made me sound and well." 50c. Sold by Hefley-Arcularius Drug Co.
